Players print in the order they enter the game and the first five will automatically include their position as entered when inputting the roster. The order can be easily changed if required by the user before printing.

Play by Play

The following pages include two of the several options for printing the play by play.

When printing the user has 3 choices to include on the report. They can include all, none, or any combination of these:

1. Include "Other Stats"
2. Include Turnovers & Steals
3. Include Missed Shots, Rebounds and Blocks

The first sample that follows only includes "Other Stats" option. The sample after that includes all 3 options. Substitutions, made shots, assists, fouls, free throws, and time outs comprise the minimum report and print regardless of which options are chosen.

After each player's name in "()" is the total of that statistic for that player at that point in the game.

Choosing "Other Stats" adds the "*" column directly to the right of the time. An "o" indicates points off offensive rebounds (second chance points) and a "t" indicates points off turnovers. Additionally, with this option, the program prints the sample below at the end of the report.

* 't' = points off turnovers, 'o' = points off offensive rebounds

Combo Box Score Reports

Combo Box Score Reports allow the user to select any different combinations of players and print a Box Score reflecting only the plays and the resulting statistics that occurred when that combination was on the floor. Additionally, the user can choose to include certain players but at the same time, also exclude others.

For example: Run one report with the starting center and another with the backup. Or, when the starting 5 are on the floor together. The "exclude" option is useful, for example, if you want the results of when your starting point guard is on the floor and then when he/she is not on the floor.

The reports look very much like a box score with some differences: The names of the players included or excluded for the report are printed at the top of the page. Below the totals for each team, the program projects those totals to a full game. This is done to help compare totals between two reports that encompass substantial differences in time played. And lastly, a list of when those combinations started and ended during the game.

In this case the Thunderbirds' 5 starters were chosen. They played together for a total of 6 minutes and this box reflects the stats for those minutes.
